

Celebrate Cinco de Mayo with us in a progressive dinner way! We are planning a SoKno adventure that will take us on our bikes from Baker Creek Preserve to some hospitality offered up by our SoKno neighborhood amigo's haciendas until we finish up with a last call at a local establishment. Ole'!

Pauses

First Pause-6PM 4008 Cruze Rd, 37920

Cameron and Adrian Carr welcome you to their Casa de Amarillo at 4008 Cruze Road. Tapas will include taco bites and Mexican cerveza served with loud and fiery eye contact and lame jokes. Theme drink will be the Paloma! (With free refills)

Pause Dos- Rachel Ray's House at 3709 S Haven Rd

Rachel Ray is offering up her amazing fresh quesadillas grilled outside under a moonlit night near a palava hut, made with love and magic. These have been a neighborhood favorite for years and are legendary amongst the locals. You don't want to miss them and rumor has it that there may also be additional drinks.

Paus Tres- Thomas Egan's Casa at 2715 S Haven Rd

Thomas is going to make his wild and famous churros that come from his grandmother's side of the family who are South Knoxville Colonial nobility, and the recipe goes back for generations. Some people knowingly even call him Inigo Montoya.

Paus Quatro- SoKno establishment (71 South or SoKno Taco) or, whatever the group decides

We want to end the progression at an establishment worthy of this cause. Though there are few available, the group will know in our hearts which establishments embody the celestial moment and are worthy of being the final stop on our quest for Mexicali independence. Through a ceremonial vote (likely involving alcoholic beverages), the remaining group of hardy souls will decide the final stop of this first ever SoKno Cinco de Mayo.

This event is weather dependent. Make-up day is Seis de Mayo.

The make up day for the make up day is May 5th, 2024.
